

You could sort invertebrates you might see around school in different ways, such as in this example. The vast majority of living things on the planet are invertebrates.

You can use classification keys to help group, identify and name a variety of living things. Here is an example of a classification key:

Invertebrate Classification Key

